

Chapter 151

Two figures could be seen approaching from a distance.

The man taking the lead was the Dean of Qena Hospital, Vinson!

Next to him was a slouching old man.

Vinson walked over slowly and looked at Nathan with rage in his eyes!

As for the people there, they were stunned at Vinson's words!

The only support Nathan had was the photo of the thesis he cropped!

As long as someone was able to produce the second half of the thesis, it would be solid evidence!

Now that Vinson was here, he himself was more than enough as a proof and witness!

Vinson's last statement, in particular, had caused a great disturbance among the audience!

The author of the unfinished thesis was William?!

It was nothing short of a jaw-dropping revelation!

The tables had turned!

The thesis that Nathan used to suppress the Bai family and the Genuine Care Medical Center was written by William!

In an instant, The Zhao family became the laughing stock of the city!

They had just used William's thesis to attack William. How ridiculous was that? How absurd!

Nathan felt dizzy once again!

That thesis... was written by William?

How was that possible?!

How did William know so much?!

How could he have such a profound understanding in medicine?

"Impossible! It must be that b*stard who bought you over! It had to be! I don't believe it! I don't believe it!" Nathan yelled like a madman.

As he continued shouting, everyone looked at him with disdain and contempt!

He was still struggling despite being on his deathbed!

He looked so desperate and shameless!

Vinson sneered and said, "I knew all along that the Zhao family would never own up to their false accusations. Therefore, I have brought along another witness with me. Once he comes forth and testifies, there will be no disputing it!"

As Vinson finished, he respectfully invited the old man next to him up to the podium.

From a while ago, that old man had been staring at William.

In his eyes, there was nothing but guilt.

It was not until Vinson spoke that he came back to his senses. He introduced himself, "I am Tyrion Koo, a professor from the School of Business Management of the Qena University."

Tyrion's name provoked another uproar among the crowd.

"Tyrion Koo? This old man is Tyrion, Professor Koo!" a reporter exclaimed.

"Didn't he retire two years ago? And he never shows himself in public. Why is he here now? What does he want to prove?" another member of the media questioned as discussion broke out across the room.

"Professor Koo is a virtuous and distinguished man in Qena City. He is righteous and we will trust whatever he says!"

Tyrion glanced at William apologetically and said slowly, "I can prove that this is William's graduation thesis."

"As I was his thesis supervisor at that time." He lowered his head slightly.

"Three years ago, William was a student at the School of Business Management. However, he prepared a medical thesis as his graduation thesis. Back then, I was so furious as I thought he was trying to humiliate me. In the end, I insulted him, and this thesis was never completed."

He peeked at William before he continued, "However, I never thought that this thesis would cause such a stir! What I did not expect was that William didn't write the thesis on a whim nor meant to spite me with it. The recent incidents have proved the value of William's thesis. So, William, I sincerely apologize to you."

He bent down and bowed deeply to William. "I should not have insulted you back then. I'm sorry. If I had allowed you to finish writing this thesis, everyone would have known about the deadly Heption Herb. The patients here would not have almost lost their lives as well. Therefore, as far as the incidents the past few days are concerned, I am guilty."

He put his hand on his chest as he made another bow. "I'm sorry that this apology came three years late..."

Everyone's eyes were wide opened!

Tyrion not only proved that William was the author of the thesis...

But he also apologized to William and proved how valuable and relevant the thesis was!

What shocked the people, even more, was that Vinson, as the Dean of Qena Hospital also bowed to William and apologized to him.

Vinson had been condemned by his conscience over the past few days.

After kneeling in front of the Bai family that rainy day, he was enlightened by William's words and decided to stand up for William.

First, he went and looked for Tyrion, because it was in Tyrion's database that he accidentally found the thesis.

After he remembered where the thesis originated from, Vinson immediately went looking for Tyrion.

After Tyrion retired, he completely faded out from the public, and basically, no one could ask him for help.

Vinson had waited outside Tyrion's house for a few days. Finally, Tyrion decided to give him three minutes to explain himself.

When Vinson took out the thesis, Tyrion was shocked.

Vinson learned from Tyrion that the author of the unfinished thesis was actually William!

The sudden revelation put Vinson in a stupor.

William!

William already had such a profound understanding of medical science three years ago!

Vinson felt so ashamed when he compared himself with William!

Holding onto William's thesis, he indirectly became an accomplice for the Zhao family!

He had aided the Zhao family in subduing William mercilessly!

As yet another pang of guilt filled him, stronger than ever, his chest felt so heavy that it was hard for him to breathe.

At this very moment, he had done his duty to reveal the truth and delivered his apology, he felt so much relieved.

Regardless of whether William forgave him, he knew that he had done all he could. At least, he would not have another sleepless night haunted by his guilt.

William looked at the two men in front of him and helped them up.

That thesis was indeed William's graduation thesis from three years ago.

In the past, he wanted to finish the research, but Tyrion as his supervisor disallowed it, hence he could only give up.

It was not until Lydia developed the new product a while ago that he remembered the wonderful effects of the Heption Herb.

At that point, he planned to complete his past research.

Who would have thought that it would become the source of all this trouble.

Seeing Vinson, Melissa couldn't help but laugh bitterly in her heart.

Did he really appear here because he wanted to?

"I'm afraid not," she thought, pursing her lips.

It must be that b*stard who set Vinson up for this without Vinson's knowledge and awareness. William was using Vinson's heart of gold as a part of his plan!

Vinson would definitely make an appearance regardless!

However, she did not expect Vinson to arrive at such an opportune time!

Having Vinson to come forward with the evidence was better than William claiming authorship of the thesis himself. It would definitely be more convincing for the public!

"William, just how many more miracles are you capable of?" Melissa shook her head.

As Melissa suspected, William was the one who led Vinson to trace the source of the thesis and to identify its author.

Felicity looked at William, and her eyes suddenly turned red.

She attended the same university as William, and they were even classmates back then!

However, she was extremely disappointed with William at that time. She couldn't care less about the contents of his graduation thesis...

She only knew that William's thesis was rejected.

At that time, Felicity did not comfort him as she was too disappointed in him...

She was disappointed that he could not even properly finish his graduation thesis...

Thinking of this, Felicity was consumed by immeasurable guilt towards William.

Like a short film, all the humiliation that William had silently endured over the years were played in front of Felicity's eyes.

Just as she was about to go over to him, she heard Steven sneer, "Hmph, what an incredible tale. In reality, he only wrote that thesis to secure a career in the pharmaceutical industry while using the name of our family. While he did write that thesis, the reason it was unfinished was simply that he didn't know how to complete it."
