

Remarriage His Billionaire Ex-Wife By H. D. Cynthia Chapter 177

Chapter 177

“It has nothing to do with Terry!” Grace immediately replied. Then, she paused for a moment and realized that she had made a mistake. Grace looked grim as she shut her mouth.

“So you dragged me because of Terry?” Jessica asked, “Do you like Terry?”

Grace froze for a moment. “Yes, I like him. So what? I did visit him before, but I told him that it didn’t matter if he refused to go on a date with me. I just need him to help me by being my rumored boyfriend. It’s all your fault. I lost my job because he refused to do it! He said you never like a playboy!”.

Grace thought of it and got a horrible expression on her face. “When he mentioned you, he looked so gentle! Theard many times that he was pursuing you in the past few months, but you are not good enough for him.”

Jessica looked at her. When Grace finished, Jessica raised her eyebrows and said, “So Miss Sandoval, thank you for doing me a favor.”

Jessica chuckled and lowered her head. “I didn’t know that Mr. Davison was so that into me.”

Grace seemed to come to her senses as she looked at Jessica.

The furious look on Grace’s face slowly faded. Grace looked at Jessica arrogantly. “Miss Hall, you are lucky this time. But I suggest you forget about it and just move on. The Hall Group is very powerful now, but believe me, the Sandoval Group will catch up soon.”

“Are you sure that the Sandoval Group will catch up soon?” Jessica put on a mysterious smile and gave an order, “Miss Sandoval, it seems that you don’t regret what you did. In that case, Wendy, you could see Miss Sandoval out now.”

Wendy nodded and walked by Grace at once.

Grace gave them a dirty look and left arrogantly, holding her handbag in her hands.

The bodyguards guarding the door also stood on both sides peacefully. They didn’t stop Grace.

“Jess, are you really going to let her go so easily? She deserves more!” Hannah was extremely unhappy about Grace’s attitude.

She had held back her words for a long time. After Grace left, she immediately asked Jessica,

“Why the rush? Jess knows ‘an eye for an eye’ very well.” Mona calmly took a sip of her cocktail.

Jessica gave Mona a look of approval. Then Jessica turned to Wendy and said, “I plan to acquire a company. How many days will it take?”

“It depends on the scale of that company.” Wendy replied.

“It is the Sandoval Group.”

Wendy considered for a moment and replied, “It will take about two days. Currently, the largest shareholder of the Sandoval Group is the Davison Group, which takes up 40% of the shares, We currently hold only 20% of their shares. I can arrange the purchase plan. As long as our shares exceed those held by the Davison Group, we can become the largest shareholder.”

Jessica nodded when she heard it. It was her purpose.

Jessica agreed with Wendy and said with satisfaction, “Do it as soon as possible.”

“Yes, Miss Hall.” With that, Wendy simply got up and left the box.

Seeing that the door was closed, Jessica turned to look at Hannah. Jessica smiled and said, “Now are you still worrying about it?”

“That’s great, Jess. I’m looking forward to the day you become the new major shareholder of Sandoval Group. Grace will go crazy at that time!” Hannah nodded happily because she was looking forward to it.

“Alright, it’s getting late. I’ll go home now.” Jessica smiled and stood up to leave.

Hannah quickly stood up and asked, “Why are you going back now? It’s still early. Stay here, and let’s have some fun!”

“I wish I had as much free time as you. I have to go to work tomorrow.” Jessica patted Hannah on the shoulder and then bid Mona goodbye by nodding her head.

Seeing that Jessica could still joke with her, Hannah understood that Jessica was in a good mood. Hannah was relieved.

Jessica left Cloud Top and drove home.

Jessica had just walked out of the elevator when she saw Terry standing at her door.

Jessica stiffened for a second before she came back to her senses.

She put her phone back in her handbag and smiled as she walked up to Terry. "Mr. Davison."

She was smiling, but the smile did not look sincere at all. Her voice was a little hoarse, too.

Terry knew something was wrong. He stopped smiling and felt Jessica's smell of alcohol. "Did you drink?"

"Just one glass." Jessica nodded, not denying it.

"What's up?" Jessica asked, not wanting to dwell on the subject.

Jessica suddenly felt a headache and could not help but raise her hand to rub her forehead.

"Are you drunk?"

Terry, who was next to her, asked. Jessica glanced at him and nodded.

"A little. I had a glass of freshly made fruit cocktail," Jessica said.

"Give me your hand," Terry said.

Terry helped Jessica to the door. Jessica looked at the palm that Terry had reached out to her and hesitated.

But before Jessica made up her mind, Terry had already pulled her hand and pressed her index finger against the doorknob.

With a beep, the door opened. Then Terry pushed the door open and helped Jessica in.

“Just sit here,” Terry said.

Jessica was taken to the sofa, and she tilted her head to look at Terry, who was walking toward the kitchen.

Terry was slowly undoing the cufflinks of his shirt.

The muscles on Terry’s forearms were even more burly and more beautiful than some fitness trainers’.

Jessica wondered whether it was appropriate to stare at a man’s forearms like that.

While she was lost in her thoughts, Terry came out with a glass of water. “Take some water, and you won’t feel sick in your stomach tomorrow.”

Jessica reached out to take the water, but Terry didn’t let go. As a result, her hand was placed on Terry’s.

Jessica quickly retracted her hand and said, “Sorry.”

Terry just smiled and said, “Don’t move around. The fruit cocktail is actually quite strong. It will cause a headache.”

Terry was right, Jessica did have a bad headache now.

However, Jessica would not lose her mind when she was drunk. Instead, Jessica was very conscious. She just had a terrible headache and didn't feel like moving.

After drinking half a glass of water, Jessica shook her head and asked, "Why did you come to me?"

"I just want to see you," Terry replied.

Terry put the remaining water on the table. Jessica looked at the glass of water and somewhat did not know what to say.

After a while, Jessica moved a little and said, "I'm going to get some rest, Terry."

The wine was so strong that Jessica didn't bother to chat with Terry.

"Wait a minute." Terry got up and walked to the entrance, taking out a document from his bag. Then he placed it in front of Jessica and said, "That's what I got."

Jessica glanced at Terry picked up the folder, and flipped it open. Then she saw what was written on the document.

A week ago, 300,000 dollars was transferred to Judy's account for an unknown reason.

At the same time of the same day, Bob's bank account also received 500,000 dollars.

However, just yesterday, the money in Bob's account was transferred to another account again.

This was indeed suspicious, and the other finding below was even more suspicious.

Just 10 days ago, Grace and Judy met at a coffee shop, and the next day, Judy had dinner with Jerry.

Jessica still remembered Jerry. He was the one who helped Olivia frame her last time.

When Jessica saw this, the smile on her face had completely faded.

Jessica looked up at Terry and asked, “So what happened has something to do with Olivia?”

Terry smiled and replied, “Yes, it must have something to do with Olivia. As I said before, Lucas is a rigorous guy. It is difficult for ordinary people to lay their hands on him.”

In fact, even if Terry didn’t tell her, Jessica had already guessed it.

Jessica felt so disgusted, as if she had stepped on a pile of shit.

Terry saw that Jessica did not speak again, and the smile on his face faded, “Lucas might not know about this.”

Hearing what Terry said, Jessica collected her thoughts, but her look was still cold. “It doesn’t matter whether Lucas knows it or not,” Jessica said.

Jessica thought, ‘Whether Lucas knows it or not, he and Olivia are both members of the Thomas family, and the two of them are siblings.

What's more, Lucas is not a fool. Olivia has plotted to frame him, so how can't he find out the truth if he has someone investigate it?

As a man with sharp senses, how could Lucas miss the link?

It is impossible.

Lucas must have known everything.

Terry, who had been extremely nervous, felt relieved the moment he heard Jessica's words.

Terry pursed his lips and looked at Jessica with some expectation and some restraint in his amorous eyes. "Do you need any help?" Terry asked.

Jessica closed the document and smiled at Terry. "Thank you, Terry. This is between me and Lucas. I don't want you to get involved."

The light in Terry's eyes dimmed a lot, but he soon recovered, and said, "All right."

Then, Terry looked at his watch and said, "I still have a meeting tomorrow, so I've got to go now."

Jessica smiled and nodded, "I'll walk you out."
