

Apex Chapter 514

Chapter 514

A Lame Old Hen Seeing that Maya was still crying, the maid hurried over to console her as well. Javier and the maid ended up coaxing her for a while before they were finally able to make Maya stop sobbing

“Then can you promise me that we’ll be best friends? I like you very much.”

Javier was finding it a little hard to accept such a direct confession.

However, he recalled that Maya had a mental disability and all that discomfort disappeared at once. Obviously, the “like” Maya mentioned was different from the one adults of different genders would refer to.

As he faced Maya’s pitiful gaze, which was looking right into his eyes, Javier nodded his head and agreed to be her best friend. “Okay, let’s be best friends from now on then.”

Maya was so happy that she began jumping in joy when she heard this. “Yay! I’ve got a best friend! Yay!”

Every time she jumped, her chest would jump around vigorously as well, which was not stopped by the constriction of her yoga clothes.

Javier could not help turning to look away when he saw the dynamic scene.

He did not dare take the risk of looking at her anymore, afraid that he might end up making a huge mistake, which would land him in big trouble.

Maya suddenly stopped jumping while Javier had his head turned around to avoid looking at her.

Then, she went on to grab his hand. “Come here, best friend. I’ll teach you how to do yoga. Make sure you behave now!” Javier was stunned! ‘What the hell?! Is she seriously asking a man to do yoga?!’

Even the maid felt that it was inappropriate and hurriedly stepped up to dissuade her. “Mr. Kersey is our guest. This wouldn’t be appropriate, Miss White.”

Maya seemed aggrieved as she pouted her sexy lips. “But I want him to do yoga with me. I like the idea of him doing it with me.”

Tears were about to fall from Maya’s eyes once more, leaving the maid helpless to stop her.

The maid looked at Javier’s gaze, which was filled with embarrassment as well. She had already noticed that Javier was an especially prestigious guest of the Whites.

Piers had personally gone to welcome them after their flight had landed, and Renly had accompanied him. Hence, she could not even begin to imagine just how prestigious this guest was.

Now, she felt even more troubled and helpless to decide what she should do as she faced Maya’s coquettish behavior and her aggrieved expression.

Thankfully, Javier nodded his head at her to gesture that he was going to play along, which allowed the maid to heave a long sigh of relief.

“Thank goodness this guest isn’t putting on any airs, nor does he seem to be angry because of something so trivial.

‘Otherwise, I’d definitely get scolded for making our guest feel unhappy.’

After accepting Maya’s request, Javier got pulled onto a yoga mat before Maya personally demonstrated some yoga techniques.

Sure enough, Maya was extremely flexible.

She was standing on only her right leg with her body leaning forward. Then, her left leg extended backward, forming a 180-degree angle with her body, which was leaning forward.

Her arms were even stretched to the front and back in parallel lines as she maintained that pose on the yoga mat.

Maya made it seem very easy and looked as beautiful as a swan spreading its wings.

However, when it was Javier’s turn to do it, he seemed like nothing more than a lame old hen. Most importantly, he could not even stretch himself straight.

He was literally the embodiment of an inelegant person in a hideous pose.

To add salt to the wound, Maya even criticized him. “Why are you so bad at this, Javier? Have you always been so bad at everything?”

Javier was so aggrieved that he was almost in tears. ‘I agreed to play along out of kindness, yet aside from being exhausted, I’ve earned myself the reputation of being bad at everything!’

However, Maya did not mean it maliciously. Plus, she was practically just a teenager, so Javier could not even feel angry at her in the slightest.

Helpless to change the situation, Javier forced a smile despite his depressed mood, consoling himself by thinking that he was coaxing a child at that moment.

Fortunately, Jade showed up after approximately 10 minutes.

When she saw Javier in his lame hen pose, she immediately giggled and said, “I see you’re even trying to do yoga, eh?”

Javier finally saw his savior! He hurriedly put down his leg and waved at Jade.

“You came just at the right time, honey! Hurry up and save me from this literal hell!”

Jade was confused by the situation. ‘Why is he making it sound so dramatic?’

When Javier told her everything that had just happened, she immediately laughed out loud.

Then, she leaned toward Javier’s ear and whispered, “Serves you right for not commanding your legs to keep moving the moment you see a beautiful woman!”

Javier, who had just been accused, said, "I really did pass by this place while I was running..."

However, Jade did not listen to his explanation. Instead, she directly approached Maya and said, "Hello, Maya. My name is Jade. Can we be best friends, please?"

Maya did not seem like someone who would complain about having more friends, so she very readily agreed to the request.

In fact, the two of them were able to get very close very quickly, as Jade would also do yoga at home

Then, Jade invited Maya to do yoga together, even teaching the latter a lot of new techniques.

As a result, Maya happily danced around and told Javier, "You can leave now. We're no longer best friends. Jade's my best friend now. The best friend in the world!"

Javier was speechless. 'How the hell did she learn to get rid of any dead weight the moment they're no longer needed? This technique seems so familiar!'

As he was left speechless, Renly walked over from afar.

When he saw Jade and Maya doing yoga together, he felt even more envious of Javier.

"She's such a beautiful woman who's so tolerant with both her words and actions. Most importantly, she's doing yoga with Maya and even befriending her.

'Honestly, I have the urge to take her from him.'

However, Renly could obviously tell how deeply in love Javier and Jade were, so him trying to drive a wedge in their relationship would be nothing short of futile. He would be trying to build a bridge between Jade with the worst of materials. Forget about driving a wedge between Jade and Javier. He would not be able to make them grow apart even if he pulled out a rifle.

Thus, he was destined to have no chance with Jade in this lifetime...

Approaching the rest, Renly greeted everyone before going on to talk about some official matters.

"The Andrews' plane is arriving soon. Our grandfathers have asked us to go and welcome them."

The Andrews Family was in third place after the Whites and the Kerseys. They had recently become very infamous for instigating war, selling drugs, and trafficking humans.

All in all, there was nothing they were not involved in so long as it was illegal and violent.

Over the past few years, they'd even begun getting involved in online crime. They would gather a large group of hackers to work on online scams and theft. So long as they could earn quick money by doing something, the Andrews would definitely be involved.

Did they have a bottom line? No! Money and wealth were their bottom line.

That day, Piers and Zephiel had asked Renly and Javier to meet them, and their intentions were clear.

The person who was coming may be the family leader of the Andrews, but he was still not worthy enough of having the two elders welcome him personally.

“Fine... They are the third strongest family after all, so we should go as substitutes to welcome him instead.”

“Substitutes?” Renly laughed. ‘He’s right. We do f*cking seem like substitutes.’