

Chapter 489

Teach Him a Lesson Jordan showed himself. He no longer seemed afraid because more than 20 people were behind him.

The 20-odd people all looked weird. At first glance, they looked like thugs. They were smoking cigarettes and had bats in their hands. Jordan walked in front of them, filled with pride. He looked like their boss.

However, after he made his appearance and before he had time to say anything, he was yanked away by the man behind him, who had gold earrings hanging from his ears. He was clearly walking on the wrong route as he was blocking the boss' way. At that moment, Audrey witnessed everything from a distance. She quickly stepped forward to try to stop them.

However, when she walked past Javier, he reached out his hand and stopped her.

Audrey was a little anxious. She knew that Javier was the chairman of Reivaj Group, but she believed that Javier did not know that the guy with the gold earring was someone he should not mess with.

"The leader is called Butch. He's a big mafia boss in the area. Their last boss has gone to prison for his crimes. Butch gathered all the men who once served the last boss, and he's extremely feared in their circle. No one dares to mess with him.

"I don't know how Jordan got to know him, but this is very dangerous. Don't stop me. I'll ask Jordan to persuade them to leave, or a fight may break out today!"

Audrey was certain that the matter would not be solved easily today. She also did not want Butch to hurt the guests that Javier had brought.

Javier understood her good intentions, but it was not the kind of thing that a woman could solve.

Moreover, she was a beautiful woman. It would be unlikely for her to solve the matter without having to sacrifice anything. That was indeed the case. Just when Javier was stopping Audrey, Butch, the thug with gold earrings, brought someone over. After blocking Javier's way, Butch looked at Javier with a smile, and he suddenly raised his hand to slap him out of nowhere.

His sudden move was unexpected, but Javier's reaction, turning his head to the side, was more amazing. It felt like Javier was just turning his head to look away, and he dodged Butch's slap. Butch did not even touch him.

Butch missed the slap and was momentarily stunned. He then smiled at then unned. He then smiled at the men behind him." D*mn, he has the balls to dodge?"

The men behind him did not utter a single word, but it was obvious they had vile intentions from their grim smiles.

Butch then turned his head to look at Javier again.

"I don't know who you are, and I don't know which b*tch gave birth to you, but I know you offended my brother, Jordan. My brother..."

After saying that, Butch pondered for a while. He then waved his hand and said, "Forget it. I can't make this up anymore. Let me tell you this, I don't care if you kill Jordan. But you son of ab*tch, the biggest mistake is that you got yourself involved with Audrey Mendez.

"Do you know that Audrey Mendez is my woman? I've been waiting to f*ck her for the longest time. I'm just done working on my business, but you're thinking of taking a piece of my cake. You're quite something, huh?"

When Butch was talking to Javier, Audrey was annoyed. "Butch, stop spewing nonsense. When was I ever your woman? We're not even acquaintances. I've also given you the protection fee of 1,500 dollars that you ask for every month. Don't go too far, or I might call the police on you!" Butch was wild when he was dealing with Javier. But when it came to Audrey, Butch became a lot gentler.

"Audrey, don't say that. It makes me sad when you say that. I'm charging you a protection fee for the sake of my brothers! Besides, I don't charge you much. I'd normally charge 3,000 dollars for a building as large as yours!"

Audrey looked at him angrily. Her anger did not ease despite Butch putting on sheep's clothing

Butch had always aggravated her.

Before her husband passed away, he had been a good friend of Butch's boss, so they were always taken care of. Even after her husband passed away, her business was also taken care of. Moreover, although the boss was involved in the underworld, he was loyal and had a good reputation.

However, Butch was not like that at all. He was extremely mean toward people. To put it bluntly, he would rob the old lady selling tacos on the street.

People had tried calling the police, but he would never show up. Instead, he would make some underage kids stir up trouble.

Those kids were ignorant of righteousness and did not understand the law. They could not be sentenced to prison either, so there was nothing that the police could do.

Not just Audrey, everyone was suffering because of him, and they all wished he could be arrested right away.

Butch clearly did not have self-awareness. He was leaning in toward Audrey with a shy expression!

But this time, Javier stopped him before he got close.

"Are you a mafia boss?" Butch was stunned by Javier's sudden question. He then replied with a smile, "Are you a policeman?"

Javier shook his head. "I'm not a policeman. I'm just curious about pieces of trash like you. There've been so many gang crackdowns lately. Why didn't they take you?" Butch laughed. "Because I've got tough skin, and I can't be cracked!"

His reason was utter nonsense.

However, Javier did not care. He calmly took out a cigarette and lit it. He then puffed the smoke on Butch's face.

The men behind Butch were filled with rage and righteousness, like tiger cubs.

Javier said, "I can send all of you to the station today. Do you believe it or not?" Butch acted like he was frightened. "Oh, you scared me to death. You want to send all my men and me to the police station? Do you think you're somebody? Are you the type who thinks you're all that just because you have a lighter in your pocket?"

Javier was not. From a distance, Running Man was watching as he leaned against the wall with a cigarette in his mouth.

Running Man had been following Jordan. He obviously knew about the arrival of these guys, and he had notified Javier by phone in advance.

However, only he and Javier knew about this matter. No one else knew, including Jordan.

At that moment, Jordan was a little anxious when he heard Butch and Javier talking nonsense.

"Boss, do something to him. Teach him a lesson. Let him know how powerful you are!"

It seemed like Javier had really rubbed Jordan the wrong way yesterday. He saw Javier like he was an enemy.

But from Javier's point of view, he felt that Jordan could still be saved because at least he did not target Audrey.

It indirectly showed he knew in his heart that Audrey was sincere and kind to him, so he only went against Javier. He did not want to cause Audrey any substantial harm.

When Javier thought of this, he put his arms around Jordan's shoulders and pulled him toward himself. He then forcibly turned him around and kicked him on the buttocks, causing him to stumble several meters away.

"Go as far as you can. Don't hang around these b*stards."

One sentence from Javier made the entire group of thugs led by Butch furious. They were all enraged and seemed quite aggressive. This was especially true of Butch, who was leading the gang. He glared at Javier furiously.

"It looks like I have to draw blood today. You have no idea who you're messing with!"

Butch was about to start the fight upon saying that,

However, at a critical time like this, something suddenly happened.